Hunter Oil Update on Hurricane Harvey

HOUSTON, TEXAS – September 13, 2017 – Hunter Oil Corp. (OTCQX: HOILF; TSX-V: HOC) (the "Company" or "Hunter") provides shareholders an update on Hurricane Harvey. Our Houston office is closed at this time due to flooding in our office premises and throughout the Houston Energy Corridor.

Our field operations in New Mexico were not affected by the storm. We are not experiencing any reduction in production or impact from the storm operationally.

Our thoughts and prayers are with our fellow employees and their families in the Houston area and everyone who experienced the catastrophic rainfall and flooding associated with Hurricane Harvey. The safety of our personnel has always been our priority. We are pleased to report none of the Hunter management nor staff were injured during the storm or post flooding. Our Houston office is expected to remain closed for several weeks. Houston staff will continue corporate duties remotely as much of Hunter's IT and telecommunications is cloud-based and unaffected. Hunter has made additional efforts to secure temporary office space immediately accessible and turnkey for operations, if required.
